On Monday we went on a class trip to Vindolanda (which is a Roman museum.) This is a picture of a water fountain that was made in Italy.

This is a model of a Roman soldier. He is holding a stick but I do not know why he is holding one because he has got a sword.

We saw a film of Romans and an eagle was telling us information about the film.

Can you see the middle helmet? It has a Mohican on it. It means that the people who wore it were leaders.

Roman armour is very heavy and very different.

This is the Roman alphabet.

We saw a Roman chariot but I do not think it is real!

After all of the inside bit we went outside and we saw a well and it was very deep.

This is the Roman Empire.

When we were outside we saw a Roman bath house.

Once we had finished at Vindolanda we went to Hadrian's Wall and then we went home.
